Police chief Ole Vik travels to Drammen to assist detective Cecilie Hopen, who has been asked to identify the body of her partner Bernhard. Found in the river, his belongings by the waterfront, the police suspect Bernhard of having committed suicide.

Police chief Ole Vik travels to Drammen to assist detective Cecilie Hopen, who has been asked to identify the body of her partner Bernhard. Found in the river, his belongings by the waterfront, the police suspect Bernhard of having committed suicide. The plot takes a new turn when the body turns out to be someone else. So what has happened to Bernhard? In their pursuit of answers, Ole Vik and Cecilie Hopen are dragged into an underground network filled with heinous acts of human trafficking, violence and prostitution. The Concealment is the ninth book in the series about Ole Vik and Cecilie Hopen.

«Another good novel by Jæger... As always packed with suspenseful action... Jæger is incredibly skilled at separating action scenes and characterizing people using few words.»

Stavanger Aftenblad

"Jørgen Jæger has written an excellent action-packed novel. With The Concealment, the author delivers a superb and intense story that sends shivers down the spine ..."
